

The issues of security and ways in which schools and law enforcement can further enhance security have been at the forefront of discussions at the national, state and local levels. Locally, the Hackettstown School District continues to have a positive, cooperative partnership with all levels of law enforcement. To that end, beginning Monday, March 5th, the district will be adding additional security staff district-wide, to assist law enforcement while providing the safest environment possible. The district, as always, encourages parents, community members and staff to remain vigilant in our efforts to protect our students and school community.

Sincerely,
David C. Mango
Superintendent of Schools
